

LONG-BILLED DOWITCHER

Coloring Page

Long-billed dowitchers have a brown-black body with a scalloped underbelly. As their name indicates, it has a long, thin, bill. Long-billed dowitchers are found in Alaska, Siberia, and South America. They are only found in the United States when they migrate. Their population is widespread and common. They make their homes in shallow pools and mudflats. Long-billed dowitchers eat insects, mollusks, and plants. They migrate from the far north-west to the southeast.
